10-Year Postal Ratemaking Review: What Comes Next?

Speakers: Mike Plunkett, President & CEO, Association For Postal Commerce; Phil Tabbita, Manager, Negotiation Support, American Postal Workers Union; Hamilton Davison, ACMA

By now, you've heard plenty about the Postal Regulatory Commission's proposal to change the postal rate-making process. The ACMA has injected its ideas for both catalog-friendly and Postal Service-friendly solutions, some on our own; others as part of coalitions with similarly-situated mailing groups. This panel of postal insiders from a diverse mix of mailing interests will share its views on where your postal rates could be heading in the next few years.

- 12:30 – 2:00 pm Luncheon & Presentation: Advancing Catalogers' Agenda in Dysfunctional Washington: Doable or Impossible?
Alex Vogel, Managing Partner, The Vogel Group
ACMA members and non-members alike hear from us all the time: "Write your member of Congress about this"; "invite your member of Congress over for a tour and impress upon them that." Where does all that go and how does it dovetail into the broader body of work in catalogers' interests? Mr. Vogel, the ACMA's government affairs lobbyist, will break down how the whole chain of events can influence Washington legislators in catalogers' favor.
- 2:00 – 2:45 pm Can the Numbers Add Up for the USPS?
Speaker: Kevin Kosar, VP of Policy, The R Street Institute
Earlier this year, Mr. Kosar wrote a policy study on the financial condition of the USPS. At R Street, a nonprofit, nonpartisan, public policy research think tank, he co-directs the non-partisan Legislative Branch Capacity Working Group, which aims to strengthen Congress. Mr. Kosar will discuss his recent and past studies on the USPS and whether there is a viable economic future for the Postal Service.
- 2:45 – 3:45 pm Looming Supreme Court Quill Decision & What to Do About All Those Remote State Sales Tax Laws
Jonathan Johnson, President, Medici Ventures & Board Member, Overstock; Martin I. Eisenstein, Managing Partner, Brann & Isaacson
As the U.S. Supreme Court nears its decision in South Dakota v. Wayfair, Overstock.com, Newegg, which could possibly change the Quill precedent, states like South Dakota and Colorado continue to march to the beat of their own drums. Besieged by nasty-grams from more and more states? What are the best ways to handle these regulations? Is what's good for Louisiana also good in Connecticut? What about Ohio? ACMA's tax attorney, Mr. Eisenstein, and our TruST partner, Mr. Johnson, will tackle all of what's going on and make sure you come away fully versed on how to deal with this growing problem to your business.
- 3:45 – 4:00 pm Refreshment Break
- 4:00 – 5:00 pm Postal Reform Legislation: Reinventing the USPS Wheel
Ronald A. Stroman, Deputy Postmaster General and Chief Government Relations Officer, USPS; John Kane, Senior Governmental Affairs Advisor, U.S. Senate Committee on Homeland Security & Governmental Affairs, Sen. Tom Carper (D-DE); Ashley Poling, Senior Policy Counsel, Subcommittee on Regulatory Affairs and Federal Management, U.S. Senate Committee on Homeland Security & Governmental Affairs, Sen. Heidi Heitkamp (D-ND); Arthur B. Sackler, Manager, Coalition for a 21st Century Postal Service & attorney at Sackler Brinkmann & Hughes LLC
Mr. Stroman oversees public policy for the US Postal Service. Mr. Kane has returned to again be a driving force behind Senate efforts to pass a postal reform bill. Mr. Sackler runs a mailing industry coalition ACMA supports. The panelists will discuss the USPS's short- and long-term legislative needs including the idea by some in Congress that a new business model is needed. Also being pondered are current efforts for reform legislation on Capitol Hill, including some of the forces in Congress that will influence the outcomes, and how you can get involved to ensure passage of crucial bills to enable the Postal Service to continue to meet your needs.
- 5:30 – 5:45 pm Buses loading for evening reception
- 6:30 – 9:30 pm ACMA-hosted VIP Reception for All Attendees & Key Policy Officials
